A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. The central focus is a cluster of rectangular, light-colored stone or brick fragments, some of which are arranged in a grid-like pattern. A scale bar, consisting of two parallel horizontal lines, is positioned above the fragments. Below the scale bar is a white rectangular label with the number '665' printed in black. The surrounding area is dark, textured earth with visible cracks and some smaller, scattered fragments. The overall scene suggests an excavation of ancient masonry or a similar structure.

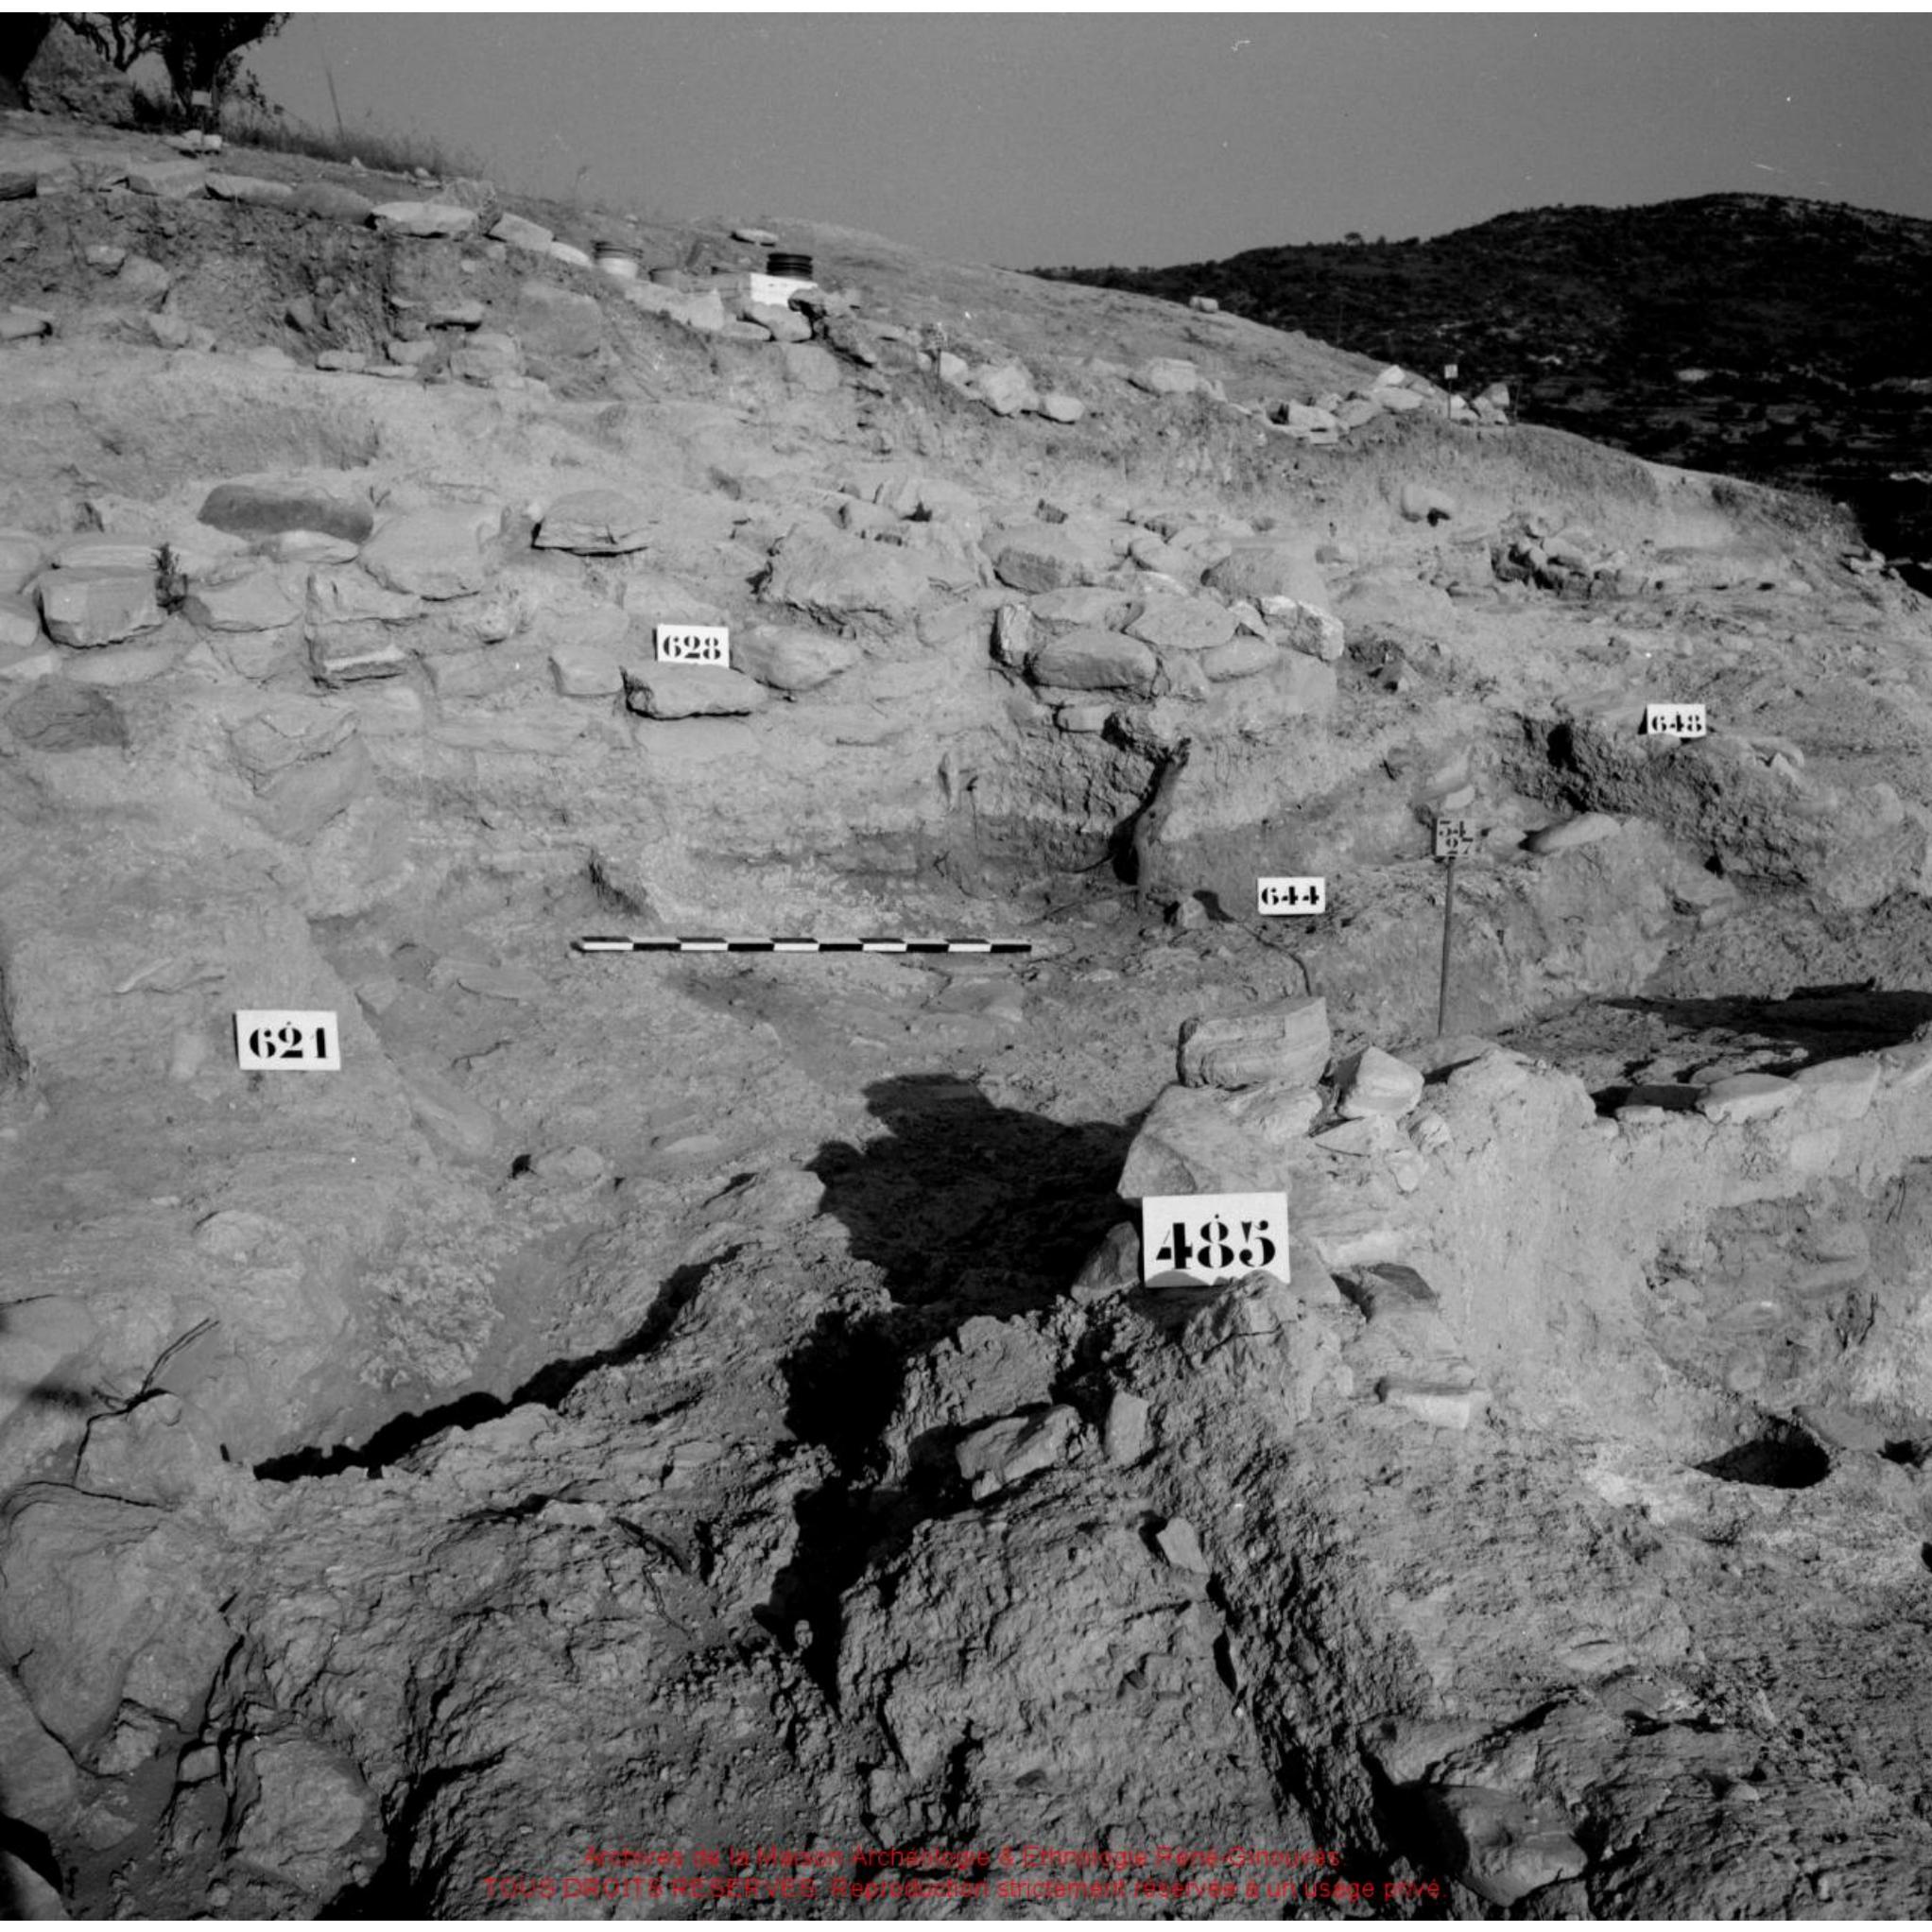

665

511

502

621

628

648

647

644

621

485

505

S.150

668