

A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. In the center, a curved, textured object, possibly a piece of wood or bone, is partially buried in the soil. To its left, a scale bar with alternating black and white segments is visible. In the foreground, a white rectangular label with the number '207' is placed on the ground. The background shows a sandy or silty surface with various small rocks and debris.

A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. The ground is sandy and uneven, with several large, light-colored rocks scattered across it. A small, dark, rectangular object, possibly a scale bar or a marker, is visible in the upper left quadrant. A white rectangular marker with the number '207' is placed on the ground in the center-left area. The overall scene suggests an excavation or a field study of a natural or man-made site.
